Raising a concern

If you are concerned about the care or service you or a relative are receiving, please talk to a member of staff involved as soon as possible and let them know.

We will always aim to resolve problems as they arise. If you are dissatisfied, or have any concerns, please tell a member of Trust staff and they will do their best to resolve the matter there and then.

Please be assured that raising a concern or making a complaint will not affect your care either now or in the future. We promise to listen carefully, find out what went wrong and do everything we can to resolve the issue.

Your details will only be shared on a need to know basis although the subject of the complaint and outcomes may be shared for wider learning.

Patient Advice and Liaison Service (PALS)

PALS offer free confidential help and advice to our patients, relatives and carers. They can:

- Assist you with finding support and information about your treatment or visit, and help resolve questions about our services
- Provide information about other local NHS, community and support services and provide information on the NHS complaints process
- Listen to your concerns, suggestions or queries about our hospital services and feed them back to the Trust. Both positive and negative comments help us to continually improve the patient experience
- Help resolve problems that service users may have experienced either as an inpatient, outpatient or visitor to the hospital

What if you remain unhappy?

If you are dissatisfied with our response to your complaint please let us know. We will always do our best to resolve any outstanding issues.

If you remain dissatisfied, you may request an independent review of your complaint by the Health Service Ombudsman, who can be contacted at:

www.ombudsman.org.uk/make-a-complaint or by telephone on: 0345 015 4033

The Ombudsman will generally consider your complaint once you have completed the Trust's complaints procedure and received your final response.

If the Ombudsman is of the opinion that the Trust can do more to resolve your complaint, they will refer your complaint back to the Trust. It is therefore very important to allow the Trust every opportunity to try and resolve your complaint.

When should you make your complaint?

Ideally, your complaint should be made as soon as possible and within 12 months of realising you have cause to complain.

Consent to carry out an investigation

If you are making a complaint on behalf of someone else, we will need that person's written consent to carry out an investigation, even if it is on behalf of a close family member or friend. A form is provided for this purpose at the centre of this booklet.

What happens next?

A member of Trust staff will contact you within three working days of receiving your complaint to confirm receipt.

If you have complained on someone else's behalf, we will ask that person for permission to liaise with you and to disclose to you any relevant information about their treatment and care, unless a valid consent form had already been provided.

We will contact you to discuss how you wish your complaint to be handled, provide you with the name and contact details of the case handler and negotiate a timescale within which to respond.

We will carry out a full investigation, and invite you to discuss your complaint in person or ask you for further information. You will then receive a full response from the Trust.

If there are likely to be any delays with our investigation, we will contact you as soon as possible to explain why.

Thank you for taking the time to make your comments, compliment or complaint. Feedback is an essential part of monitoring and improving our services.
